Spriggs-Lamb House
Arnold

mid 19th cent.
private

This mid 19th century three section farmhouse in a subdivision is all that is left of the Spriggs Farm which comprised 400 acres in 1870. Produce grown on the farm was transported by water to Baltimore from Ulmstead Point. A breezeway connects the main house and wing to a summer kitchen.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Spriggs-Lamb House is at 938 Lynch Drive, less than 1/4 of a mile from Bayberry Drive, Arnold. Once a large farm, the land has been reduced to a 2.40 acre lot, surrounded by a modern subdivision. The dwelling, facing north, is a mid-19th century farmhouse made up of three frame sections covered with German siding and weatherboard. The main block, two and-a-half stories high and five bays wide, has a one story kitchen wing abutting it on the east side. Next to the kitchen is the summer kitchen, a small one story, three bay structure on a low brick foundation. A covered breezeway forms a triangle that connects the summer kitchen and the main block. The summer kitchen is covered with weatherboards, has a low gable roof and a brick exterior chimney on the east gable end. Originally, the entrance to the house was on the south side, and the main road which led to Arnold went past it. The orientation of the house was changed in the 1950's or 60's and the road no longer exists. A one story addition with sliding glass doors was added to the rear of the house in the 1970's; it extends to the terrace of the swimming pool.

A hipped roof entrance porch, having perforated balusters, chamfered posts and uneven bays, shelters the front door, north elevation.

The entrance door is in the center bay, front elevation of the main block. The door has six panels and a small rectangular transom above it. The summer kitchen has a door in the center bay

All of the windows on the house have 6/6 light double hung sash. On the north elevation, main block, there is a wide interval between the first two and the last three bays, which corresponds to the staircase within. The kitchen and summer kitchen have smaller scale 6/6 light sash.

Interior: The main house has a center hall plan, with the stairs on the west wall entered from what is now the rear of the hall. Most of the woodwork, the mantles in the living room etc., were replaced by previous owners. Thus, the windows and doors in the dinning room have architrave framing while those in the hall and living room have plain wide board frames with mitered corners. The dinning room fireplace has been plastered over. The kitchen has a loft. The exposed beams in the ceiling of the summer kitchen bear the curved marks of a circular saw. Enclosed stairs lead to the loft above. Previous owners (c. 1960's) uncovered the large brick fireplace and added a mantle shelf.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This mid-19th century , frame, three-section~ farm house is all that is left of the Spriggs farm, which comprised 400 acres in the 1870's. The main block is two-and-a-half stories high and five bays wide under a gable roof. A summer kitchen with a loft above is connected to the main house by a small wing with a covered breezeway forming a diagonal across it. Because the front and sides of the building retain their essential mid-19th century character, one does not suspect that a one story frame and glass addition and a pool have been added at the rear, in spite of the fact that that elevation was originallly the principal facade.

Truck farming was extensive in the non tobacco growing parts of Anne Arundel County. While the railroad transported much of the fresh produce from the farms, sailing vessels, such as bugeyes, came to the Spriggs landing at Ulmstead Point and loaded up with water-melons, peaches, tomatoes etc for sale in Baltimore.
